"You don't have to get your act together, lose ten pounds...write a best-selling book, or raise perfect children"-God loves you anyway. So begins this collection of writings by Christian authors, which focuses on how a close relationship with God improves a woman's life in myriad ways. The title essay by Moore (Things Pondered) exhorts women to devote themselves "utterly" to God, and shows how morning prayer time helps "satisfy your soul." In a smooth, sermon-like essay, Briscoe (Prayer That Works) considers the ways women are viewed positively in scripture, and encourages women to minister, as Jesus did, with "a vision, a passion, and a mission." Wilson (Hurt People Hurt People) outlines the seven areas of a woman's life-spiritual, personal, relational, rational, emotional, volitional, and behavioral-and shows how understanding and growing in these areas can help improve self-esteem. "Being a Godly Woman Through Every Stage of Life," by Hart, a chaplain at Fuller Theological Seminary, uses scripture to urge women to depend on God during difficult times, and "Living in the Spirit of Unity," by Wells, the founder of A Woman of God Ministries, teaches readers about the power of love. Women looking for spiritual sustenance will find comfort in these pages, as the authors share personal problems and triumphs as well as their passionate commitment to a closer relationship with God. Bringing together many of today's most trusted Christian communicators, A Woman and Her God offers life-changing messages from Beth Moore, Jill Briscoe, Sandra D. Wilson, Kathleen Hart, Dr. David Hager, Thelma Wells, and Beverly LaHaye on achieving and enjoying intimacy with God amid the crush of life's demands. From developing a healthy self-concept and trusting God in difficult times, to living in the spirit of unity and leaving a godly legacy, let this book escort you into your heavenly Father's presence -- and to a closer walk with Him. --This text refers to an out of print or unavailable edition of this title.

I wanted to read something inspiring; something that made me understand God more. This book, for me, was not it. It's not a bad read, but the Bible is the best reference you can have to build a closer relationship with God. Each time you read the Bible, the more you understand.

I didn't have the opportunity to fully investigate this book; it was required for a college course on counseling women. Was excited that it was "written" by Beth Moore (yes, I'm a male that loves to listen to Beth); unfortunately, ONLY THE FIRST CHAPTER IS WRITTEN BY BETH MOORE. The book, thus far (as a stand-alone) is decent. I believe that I'd enjoy it more, with more of Moore. Had Moore written the whole book, I'd be seeing more stars of enjoyment, and you'd be seeing more stars in this rating. For more, check-out Beth's other books, and you'd get a lot more out of Moore.

This book demonstrates different perspectives from different writers. Each chapter is from a different author. This book would be great for a woman's bible study on trusting God. The downside is there are a lot of fillers like personal stories instead of raw biblical information.

Such a wonderful book with so much perspective and insight of living through many life experiences and how to look to God for answers and comforts in all we go through.

The first chapter by Beth Moore is worth reading over and over. God wants to satisfy - we don't have to live trying to substitute or live on a sustenance offered by others. He is the source of satisfaction. His promises won't be broken when we seek them to be true in our lives. This book speaks to women as we have tendencies to look for our satisfaction in the approval of others. Our heavenly Father is sufficient for us, He will satisfy.

Do you want to know God better? This book will challenge your thinking. The Holy Spirit speaks through the authors, leading you to the feet of Jesus prepared and ready to receive what he has for you.

There are several writers in this book sharing their experiences on how to have a closer and more loving relationship with our awesome and wonderful God. God loves us just as we are and you don't have to change yourself before coming to Him. He expects us just as we are. I have been helped by reading this book, because I know now I'm an extraordinary woman in God sight. I hope you feel the same after reading this lovely book.

The combination of the different writers was extraordinary. Women who walk with the Lord sharing what they have learned is priceless. This book touched my heart in ways I needed at the time. Would recommend it to every woman.
